BLOOD PROOF OF PARENTAGE

Test Ordered by San Francisco Judge for First Time in History of American Courts.

San Francisco.-For the first time in American courts parentage has been determined by a blood test. On the strength of a formal report made by Dr. Albert Abrams, who, by blood tests, found that Virginia Vittori was the daughter of Paul Vittori, Judge Thomas F. Graham ordered Vittori to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court for failure to pay alimony for the support of the child. Mrs. Vittori is suing for a divorce. Vittori declared that the child was not his, and the court ordered a blood test by Doctor Abrams.

Doctor Abrams in his report said: "The examination proved conclusively that the blood of the daughter corresponded racially to that of the father and mother, viz., Italian French on the mother's side, in proportion approximately to three of the former to one of the latter, French. Furthermore, the vibratory rate of the child corresponded to that of the father."

The vibratory test is one of the most delicate known to medical sci-

Upper Class Native Women Reported to Be Making Rapid Strides Toward Emancipation.

Amsterdam. - Woman's suffrage movements have reached the Dutch East Indies, the colonies whose history and ancient savagery were chiefly known to credulous Americans through the agency of circus sideshows, wherein the "Wild Man of Borneo" and "The Terrible Dyaks, Ferocious Head Hunting Cannibals," drew many dimes while the crowds waited for the "big tent" to open.

Head hunting and kindred savage pastimes still continue, to some exent, within the jungles of these Dutch islands, but, according to the Dutch press, most of the natives are rapidly adopting modern theories.

In Java, the upper class native women, under leadership of Radeh Adjeng Kartini, a woman of high birth, are reported to be making rapid strides toward emancipation, although the Mohammedan custom of polygamy still prevails. In all the "Kartini schools" the girls of the upper classes are being taught Occidential theories of equality with the men. Dutch correspondents say the progress of the movement is necessarily slow, but appears to be certain of ultimate success.

One Little Pig Is Cause of Furore

Cincinnati.—"This little pig went to market, and this little pig stayed at home," and this is a story about a little pig that didn't want to do either, and in its efforts to get out of staying home and going to market caused a Cincinnati fire department to go clanging away on a fruitless trip.

The pig was in a pen in the Meyer packing house. It got out, and soon had a throng of employees chasing it madly around. The pig rebounded here and there in the factory, finally coming full tilt against an automatic fire alarm. An engine company, hook and ladder and the district fire marshal responded. Also a great number of citizens, who for the time being were disengaged.

The pig eventually was corralled, with the aid of the citi-

RUGGLES

PALMER'S BEER RULING MAY STAND O. K.

Definite announcement that former Attorney General R. Mitchell Palmer's opinion permitting physicians to prescribe beer for medical purposes would stand unless Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Melion should ask for a review was made by Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty.

In connection with the possible transfer of the prohibition enforcement bureau from the treasury to the Department of Justice as a part of a general reorganization of Government departments, the Attorney General said he was not seeking any additional authority, but would accept such responsibilities as Congrees might place upon him.

Creation of a single intelligence department to do the investigating werk of the Government was advocated by the Attorney General. Such a bureau, he said, would give the Government a very efficient set of men who could be assigned to the various departments as needed.

EMBROIDERED SUITS

Although embroidered suits have are well represented in spring displays. Embroideries are in the color of the suit, usually, with metal threads introduced among them.

NEAT SLIP-ON SWEATER

Interest still centers on sweaters and sweater coats-for everybody wears them. These garments of wool or silk are closely or loosely knittedaccording to the degree of warmth required of them. Tie-on and slip-on models that set snugly to the figure trend toward neat effects.

BECOMING TO MATRONS

The fine art of dressing up to one's age demands dignified, brilliant and beautiful hats for middle life. Matrons wear such lovely and flattering bits of millinery as the hat at the top of the group above with braid crown and malines brim in brown. A wreath of metallic silk roses interspersed with grasses livens it with rich color. The hat at the left is a favorite shape with up-rolling brim and a soft crown of silk braid.

IN FASHION'S MIRROR

The character of wrap most admired for spring is shown in the illustration above. It is a compromise between a cape and a coat with a strong flavor of the former. Fashion's mirror reflects many capes—pure and simple—and many coats, embodying more or less the lines of capes.

KENTUCKY FARM WOMEN LEARN SEWING METHODS

Kentucky has the distinction of being one of the two States in the Union where farm women receive instruction in clothing efficiency methods, according to Miss Helen Harriman, field agent in clothing from the Kentucky State College of Agriculture. The work was started in November, 1920, at which time 21 women were enrolled in learning methods of making clothing quickly, easily and with good results for themselves and their families. At the present time more than 100 women in the State are taking the work and passing it on to their neighbors. Massachusets is the other State giving this work to farm women.

Wherever fashionables congregate on an afternoon or evening in the coming summer, our eyes are destined to feast upon such enchanting millinery as that shown above. In this group of four hats both France and America are represented by models that vie with one another. The topmost hat, from Paris, is made of a fabric having black cellophane figures on a hennacolored silk background. Another French hat approves this long draping at the side, as shown in the round hat of navy blue crepe with band of pink crushed roses. Navy blue was chosen, having black cellophane decoration, for its handsome rival with black lace veiling the eyes and America further distinguishes itself in the all-black satin hat with cellophane trimming and long lace veil that finishes the picture.

Thousands of pushcart ice peddlers and milk wagon drivers, in New York, astute in sensing trade for spirithous stimulants among their housewife customers, have developed this potential bootleg market into wholesale proportions, Federal prohibition enforcement agents have revealed.

The American service would require somewhat larger ships and landing stations in North America. But it three years. We need such a service, and I believe that it will come."

The R-34 is the type of craft suggested for the proposed service, but the contemplated ships, although built on the R-34 lines, would be much larger and have a far greater cruising radius. It is said that a rigid airship could be built that would be 1,100 feet long, carrying 136 tons of freight or passengers, and having a maximum range of 13,250 miles, cruising radius.

Maitland Supports Project. Brig. Gen. E. M. Maitland, who commanded the R-34 in the transatlantic flight, is a believer in the plan for world air routes.

"Even the existing airship of today can be regarded as a reasonably safe type of weather, and the larger airships of the future, fitted with more powerful machinery, necessarily will be even safer. Fogs do not prove a real menace to airships, as with the present methods of navigation it is not necessary to see the ground in flying between bases. It is true that at present the most violent forms of electhan the danger of rocky coasts and

To put it another way, 15 tons would be available for passengers, mails or mer-

Craft of the type described by Brigadier General Maitland already have been used in Germany on short passenger routes. The German Air Travel company, formed in 1910 and financed and managed by the Hamburg-Amerika Steamship line, ran regular passenger excursions and town to town services from 1910 to 1914. During this period these airships made 800 flights, carrying 18,000 passengers without a single mishap involving personal injury. One of the airships, the Vittoria Louise, made 200 trips in 250 consecutive days.

The company was able to make a profit, although the passenger rates were reasonable. Since the armistice, despite the unsettled conditions in Germany, airships have been built for a special mail and passenger service between Berlin, Munich and Switzerland. The first of these ships, the Bodensee, ran regularly from June to October last year, carrying 30 passengers a trip. It is said that the Zeppelin company is now negotiating with American interests for the organization of an air service from Spain to the United States and South America, and is designing giant ships with a speed of 80 miles an hour for this run. The ships will carry 100 passengers and their baggage, as well as six or seven tons of mail.

Valuable War Reserve Force. The knowledge of handling the lighter-than-air craft greatly increased during the war. The ships were used under all weather and atmospheric conditions and did valuable service as escert and convoy craft and also in combat against submarines. Small rigids were used to locate and pursue the submarines and were able to detect a U-boat far below the surface. The new ships, in addition to their duties as passenger vessels, can easily be converted to purposes of war and will thus form a valuable air re-

One of the developments recently made in airship landing stations is the mooring mast, which enables the airship to come to the ground and be moored even during bad weather. The mast is a tall structure, with a swivel mooring device at the top, from which the airship swings.

Plans are now being prepared for a mooring tower especially arranged for use with passenger-carrying airships. The revolving head of the mast will be provided with a powerful winch for hauling in and a shock absorbing buffer 80 miles an hour. Within the mast there will be a passenger elevator by which the passengers will ascend to an upper platform, where they will cross a gangway and enter the ship.

Pipe lines to carry hydrogen, gasoline and water to the ship also will be run up the mast, and the vessel can thus refuel at her moorings.

Inventions Increase Safety.

Many war discoveries aid in increasing the safety of airship travel. The wireless direction finder makes it possible for the ship to find her location at all times and so navigate successfully in fogs. The increasing range and sources of information of the meteorological service aids in giving weather forecasts that will warn aircraft of approaching storms, which can be avoided by a change of course.

Laboratory investigations are now being made of the nature of the particles of moisture that forms fogs, and it is hoped that some way will be found of dispersing fog, so that a local clear area may be maintained about the landing places. All landing places are marked with brilliant electric beacons and lighthouses are being erected to guide night flying ships along aerial

Airships are even now a safe form of travel. When rain, high winds or electric storms approach they can seek the higher air levels and so avoid danger. The risks from fire have been reduced to a minimum, and the danger of engine trouble, ever present in the airplane, is nullified by the fact that repairs always can be made without descending. Rigid airships never have less than four engines, and it is improbable that all engines will break down at one time. Even if half the engines broke down the ship could travel at four-fifths of her normal

Public Demands Speed. The airship has the advantage over both the airplane and the steamship as a passenger craft. The airplane can only travel 300 miles without stopping at a base for fuel and is thus impracticable for long distance routes. It is, furthermore, of limited carrying capacity, and the disagreeable features of noise and vibration cannot be done away with. The great rigid, moving steadily day and night and having a cruising radius of 2,000 to 3,000 miles, makes a far better passenger ship. It has been suggested that airplane routes could be used as feeders to the airship lines, small airplanes carrying passengers to a central point, whence they could embark on the airships of transoceanic and transcontinental lines.

When the lines are established the steamships also will find them serious competitors. The airship is infinitely quicker and does not have the pitch and toss that makes steamer travel unpleasant. The demand for great ers that cut down the time spent transatlantic travel shows that there is a large class of travelers who want and will pay for speed. These people. will be the clientele of the transatlantie airship. The shipment of valuables, bonds, stocks and bullion on the speedy air liners will save the money lost in interest, and urgent mails should be shipped in this way. Even at an advanced postage rate a letter of thousands of words could be speedily transmitted in this way at the cost of one word of a cabled message.

Advantages Over Steamship. The advantages of the airship over the steamship and also the relative cost of travel are shown in the following table compiled by Brigadier General Maitland:

Airship Steamship

Time of transit, Cost of to— days passage try to 100 14 65 70

S. Africa. 6 ½ 120 17-19 70

Australia .10 ½ 190 25 115-128

Speed, safety, and a new and thrilling form of travel will be thus combired at a cost that, in view of the saving of time, is relatively little greater than the present steamship rate.

"The continental air routes will come first," says Sir Trevor Dawson, "but the most important part of air travel will be that between Europe and North America. They are the two great continents, the continents that have between them a steady flow of passenger travel. Air travel must come, cutting down the time distance between countries, and thus strengthening the ties of business, trade and international understanding. I am looking forward to the time when air liners will bring London within two days of America."-Otis Peabody Swift in New York Tribune.

LATIN NOT A DEAD LANGUAGE IN KENTUCKY.

Latin may be a dead language. but figures given out by the Registrar of Georgetown College show that will enable the ship to be coupled up it is not passing very rapidly from without difficulty even in winds up to the High Schools of Kentucky Ninety per cent of the students who entered the Georgetown College last year offered Latin for entrance. Eleven per cent. offered one year of Latin, 39 per cent. offered two years, 27 per cent. three years and 26 per cent. offered four years. Almost 50 per cent. of the High Schools offer four years of Latin now.

While Latin is not required for a degree (The Degree of Bachelor of Science) at Georgetown, it is interesting to see the number of High School graduates who come to college to take the A. B. Degree with Latin, says the Registrar.

With the sale held on the floors of deal to do with the persons bringing the Bourbon Tobacco Warehouse Company, Wednesday, the tobacco market for the present season came to a close, after a long period of de-pression and low prices, which, hap-pily, is not likely to be repeated E. As a grand total the six sales houses have disposed of 10,-994,000 pounds of tobacco for an average of about $13 per hundred pounds.
